Spring feeder sale plans are not final, but it looks as if a sale will be held March 24. Cattle will be brought in during the morning and sold at 7:00 p.m. This will probably be for heavy weight cattle–600 pounds plus.

The next two sales will probably be March 29 and April 12, with cattle delivered the previous day.

More on this later.

The Virginia Cattle Industry plans to establish a self-help program later this year. An attempt was made to establish such a program in 1970, 1975 and 1976. In 1976 a national self-help program was defeated.

Legislature adopted in 1983 provides for 50% or greater positive vote needed to enact the program and establishes the check-off at 25c per head.

G. D. Gilliam, Appomattox County, is serving on the Industry Task Force established to develop the self-help plan.

The announced schedule calls for: May 15 - June 15 - Certification to vote (voter must own 10 or more cattle.); August 1 - Ballots mailed to certified voters. August 18 - Deadline for postmark of ballots; August 28 - ballots counted and certification to Governor and Virginia Board of Agriculture.

Currently there are no funds for literature for use in schools concerning the value, cooking and carving of red meats. Nebraska has adopted Virginia and is providing the funds for this literature.

Those who support the adoption of a self-help program say that Virginia's cattle industry has been looked upon nationally as a leader in developing new innovations, technology and leadership. Two of its residents have been the top executives of the two largest breed associations in the nation. Another is an executive vice president of the National Cattlemen's Association. Virginia was the first in the development of the organized feeder cattle sales, the first to use feeder cattle grading to co-mingle cattle for sale, the first to test bulls in an off-farm bull test to select for production traits, the first to develop a beef cattle improvement association, the first to sell cattle by Tel-O-Auction procedures and the first to sell livestock by computer. Yet Virginia is the last of the major cattle producing states to assess themselves in an effort to promote the product. The Virginia Cattle Industry Task Force believes that it is time for Virginia to join the other cattle producing states of the nation in a combined effort to promote beef and veal.

Farm programs discussed

After meeting with Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block in Chicago last Friday, State FmHA Director Roie M. Godsey said the most immediate challenge stressed by Block for 1984 "is to achieve heavy participation in the 1984 farm programs."

Those attending the meeting included state directors for USDA's Farmers Home Administration and state executive directors of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Both Block and Daniel Amstutz, Under Secretary for International Affairs and Commodity Programs, emphasized the benefits producers would receive by signing up for the commodity programs.

Block said that both government and private sector analysts are saying basically the same thing: It will prove advantageous for the average American farmer to participate in these 1984 farm programs. He said the programs will not only provide a needed conservation effort, but they will also offer producers a protection against serious downward price fluctuations.

"It's essential that agriculture show its willingness to do its part in maintaining the thrust of its own recovery," Block said. "These programs and our federal crop insurance could be two of the best tools producers can work with in 1984."

Block said the farm programs, in combination with the federal crop insurance, will provide protection against the risks of drought, freeze, flood or other unanticipated acts of nature.

Frank Naylor, USDA Under Secretary for Small Community and Rural Development, told Mr. Godsey that while federal crop insurance has existed since 1985, the current insurance has been significantly revised, expanded and improved.

"Today's program offers high coverage on more crops in more places," Naylor said. "The cost per unit of protection is also much lower. Most importantly, farmers today can obtain crop insurance protection that is custom tailored to individual circumstances."

Block emphasized that farmers who question the need for crop insurance should direct their questions toward those farmers who benefited from the coverage after the unanticipated weather of 1983. "I believe this insurance was the salvation for many of those farmers."

In a separate meeting with FmHA personnel, FmHA Administrator Charles W. Shuman said they will continue to work with farmers on a fair and business-like basis, "going the extra mile to help deserving farmers."

Shuman asked the state officials to explain to borrowers who are having trouble repaying loans the requirements they must meet to qualify for loan servicing options. He said these options include: Consolidation of loans, rescheduling, reamortizing loans or deferral of payments.

On recent significant changes enacted in housing legislation, Shuman said FmHA is preparing new regulations to implement those changes. Should many of the new provisions will make it possible for the agency to help more of the most needy persons in rural areas to obtain safe, decent and adequate housing.

Farm Program Signup Began

January 16 - We have been accepting applications for the 1984 farm programs since January 16. The 1984 acreage reduction programs were announced last August for wheat and during the fall for corn, grain sorghum, barley and oats.

To be eligible for loans and target price protection farmers must sign up and comply with the acreage reduction program requirements.

To emphasize the conservation aspects of the 1984 programs, land removed from production will be put into an acreage conservation reserve (ACR). We encourage farmers to place their more erosive land into the ACR while continuing to balance supply with demand.

For reducing their wheat acres by 30 percent of their base, farmers will be eligible for target price protection at $4.45 per bushel, price support bans at $3.30 per bushel and the option to reduce their acreage an additional 10 to 20 percent for a payment-in-kind at 75 percent of their program yield.

Farmers who reduce their feed grain acreage by 10 percent of their base will receive federal target prices of $3.03 per bushel for corn, $2.88 for grain sorghum, $2.60 for barley and $1.60 a bushel for oats. They also will be eligible for loan rates of $2.55 a bushel for corn, $2.42 for sorghum, $2.08 for barley and $1.31 per bushel for oats.

Participation in the acreage reduction programs is a way in which farmers can control over-supply situations. The programs also will provide a degree of insurance for farmers against price fluctuations and adverse weather conditions.

Contracts signed by program participants will be considered binding and will provide for liquidated damages for failure to comply with program requirements. The sign-up period ends February 24.

Tobacco Fund Contribution Set at Seven Cents - For price support eligibility on 1984 flue-cured tobacco, farmers will be required to contribute seven cents a pound to a no-net-cost fund on all tobacco sold. The fund ensures that the tobacco price support program is operated at no net cost to taxpayers in accordance with 1982 farm legislation.

Farmers who market tobacco ineligible for price support because they have not agreed to contribute to the fund will be subject to the same penalty that applies to marketing excess tobacco. The penalty equals 75 percent of the previous year's average market price.

The Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act of 1983 cancelled a previous requirement that owners of flue-cured tobacco farms who lease and transfer all or any part of a marketing quota must contribute to the fund an amount equal to the producer's contribution.

The seven-cut contribution is expected to offset losses that might occur on the 1984 crop.

The flue-cured Tobacco Cooperative had recommended a seven-cent contribution after consulting with USDA.

Dairy Program Reminders - Dairy farmers are reminded that they need to establish their bases and plans for reduction by January 27 and sign contracts by January 31, 1984.

'Toxicity' will be discussed

Tall fescue toxicity will be only one of the topics examined Thursday, Feb. 9, during the Southern Piedmont forage area program in the Woodmen of the World Building in Appomattox.

Virginia Tech Extension specialists will discuss such topics as liming and fertilizing, no-till forages and plastic bags for storing.

A highlight of the program will be the honoring of the Southern Piedmont winner of the Outstanding Forage Producer Award who also will be given an opportunity to discuss his forage practices. Other area producers also will appear on the program.

The Southern Piedmont area includes the counties of Accomack, Amelia, Appomattox, Buckingham, Campbell, Charles City, Charlotte, Chesterfield, Cumberland, Dinwiddie, Essex, Fluvanna, Greensville, Halifax, Hanover, Henrico, Isle of Wight, Goochland, King and Queen, King William, Louisa, Lunenburg, Mecklinburg, New Kent, Northampton, Northumberland, Nottoway, Pittsylvania, Powhatan, Prince Edward, Prince George, Richmond, Southampton, Surry, Sussex, Westmoreland and York and the cities of Chesapeake, Suffolk and Virginia Beach.

The meeting, which is sponsored by the Virginia Forage and Grassland Council and the Virginia Cooperative Extension Service, will begin with registration at 9:30 a.m. and end at 3:15 p.m.

Additional information on the program can be obtained at a local Extension office.

Soil conservation awards

conservation because of larger equipment like too many have done. They have avoided the "leap before you look" concept that financially weakened so many operations.

H.S. (Sammy) Myers, III was awarded the "Outstanding Cooperator" in Amherst County for his outstanding program on his farm and those he rents. W. Scott Barns presented the plaque to Sammy on behalf of the R. E. Lee CD.

Charlie Elliott was awarded the "Outstanding Cooperator" in Campbell County. During the last 10 years he has systematically developed one of the best conservation programs in the area. J. Martin Gibson, R. E. Lee CD. Director, presented the plaque to Elliott.

William "Bill" Jones, Vice-President-Agricultural Services, Central Fidelity Bank, ws presented the "Distinguished Leadership in Conservation" award for his time and interest in promoting better agriculture and conservation. Bill lives near Amherst and serves the agricultural community from the main office of Central Fidelity in Lynchburg. Dr. Robert L. Hill, R. E. Lee CD Director, presented the plaque to Jones.

James P. Douglass of Lynchburg was presented the award for "Outstanding Leadership in Conservation." In making the presentation, Dr. Franklin Fline, R. E. Lee CD Director, cited Douglas's numerous conservation activities and stated that he is the outstanding leader in conservation in the City of Lynchburg.

Bob McCleeny of the USDA Soil Conservation Service summarized the 1984 conservation program. "Our number one objective is to redgce erosion on cropland. Our goal is to reduce erosion by 62,250 tons on 9,450 acres," he reported. "Conservation tillage,no-till, chisel plowing, etc, is the most practical and effective conservation practice to reduce erosion, conserve moisture and increase farm income,"McCleeny said.

The program "Stewards Of The Soil" was presented by David M White, Sales representative. Stauffer Chemical Company. This panoramic slide program promotes better land management.

A slide presentation reviewing some of the Robert E. Lee Soil and Water Conservation District and USDA Soil Conservation Service was given, citing goals and objectives.

"Our most serious erosion problems here in Appomattox County, are on our croplands, said McCleeny.

"Land rented under a short term lease, usually one year at the time, is the most mismanaged. If people saw gullies, they would be alarmed but sheet erosion steals a thin layer of soil with each storm and many farmers are not aware of the fact that they are losing their soil. A layer of soil the thickness of a dime is about 10 tons an acre and more than twice as much as nature can rebuild in a year," he added.

"We've got the know-how to farm our land without excessive erosion but first our farmers have to realize that erosion is a problem," the conservationist concluded.

The Farmers National Bank, Appomattox, co-sponsored the Awards Banquet with the R. E. Lee CD. The dinner was catered by "Affairs To Remember," Patsy Thomas and Patty Booker.

On All America selections

All-America Selections have been used for a number of years to identify outstanding vegetables and flowers. The selections are adopted to the various climates and soil conditions across the U. S.

In celebration of the 50th anniversary of All-America Selections, a survey was conducted to select the outstanding flower and vegetable. The flower is "First Lady" Marigold, which was introduced in 1968. The vegetable was "Sugar Snap" pea that was introduced in 1979 as a Gold Medal winner.

The 1984 All-America Selections are: "Celebrity" hybrid tomato, "Sugar Ann" snap pea and "Border Beauty Rose Hybrid" zinna.

Celebrity has a large fruit size that averages about eight ounces. Its big deep-colored fruits are firm, meaty and flavorful. The fruit is sweet and juicy with the added benefit of being thin-skinned. Celebrity is mid-early variety that starts producing about 70 days from transplant. It is a heavy producer all season long.

Sugar Ann the daughter of the famous edible pea pod, "Sugar Snap" tastes just as sweet as its parent succlent pods.It is about 14 days earlier than Sugar Snap and grows on compact, 18 inch bushes rather than on vines.

Border Beauty Rose Hybrid zinna has a dahlia type semi to fully double flower and is a radiant pink color, highlighted with a touch of salmon. It produces a profusion of blooms from early summer through fall.
